Judge Seawell Decides That They Handled the Trust in Their Own Interests--
A Sensational Decree.

Judge Seawell filed an opinion today in the Alameda County Superior Court, holding that Thomas H. B. Varney and John Taylor should be removed as trustees of the Thomas Varney estate for the reason that they had juggled the funds and manipulated the property of the estate to their own advantage.

He decrees that much of the bank and mining stock which passed to Varney and Taylor were not obtained by proper means and should revert to the estate.

The decision is a complete victory for Frank Varney and his co-plaintiffs, who sued to have the trustees removed.

The trial of the case was one of the memorable ones in the records of the courts of Alameda county.

H. H. Pitcher of the Bank of Livermore, who was involved with Taylor and Varney in the charges of fraud, committed suicide one evening after spending a day on the witness stand.

Judge Seawell of San Francisco was called to preside at the trial.

After reviewing the testimony and the history of the litigation, the Judge in his written opinion says:

"The foregoing views seem to lead necessarily to the conclusion that John Taylor and Thomas H. B. Varney should be removed as trustees under the will of Thomas Varney, deceased. The sections of the Civil Code which prescribes the duties and obligations of trustees and the causes for which they may be removed are merely declaratory of well-established rules of equity. They declare that in all matters connected with his trust a trustee is bound to act in the highest good faith toward his beneficiary and may not obtain any advantages therein over the latter by the slightest concealment; that he shall not deal with the trust property for his own profit nor take part in any transaction concerning the trust in which he has an interest adverse to his beneficiary; that every breach of these obligations is a fraud against the beneficiary of the trust, and that a trustee who has violated his trust may be removed.

"Among the violators of the trust of which John Taylor and Thomas H. B. Varney have been guilty I mention the following:

"They appropriated in conjunction with H. H. Pitcher, their co-trustee, stock of the Bank of Livermore belonging to the estate of Thomas Varney, deceased. It is true they gave their notes to the estate for the par value of the stock, upon the theory that they had owned it ever since December, 1885, and were indebted to the estate for the amount of their subscription; but these notes bore interest, not from December, 1885, when Thomas Varney paid for their subscriptions, but only from March 4, 1890. These notes also bore interest at only 6 per cent per annum, while at the same time there was a large surplus in the bank, out of which a dividend of 12.5 per cent was about to be declared and paid.

"The trustees also, in January, 1892, made a sale of additional shares of bank stock to Thomas H. B. Varney and H. H. Pitcher in the name of Henry B. Varney for $100, when, according to the testimony of Pitcher, added at the settlement of the first account of the trustees, the stock was worth $120 per share. They have had for investment during the whole period since the distribution of the estate in April, 1891, nearly $200,000, which it was their duty to invest in such a manner as to afford reasonable security and interest for the same. Instead of so investing the money they deposited it in the Bank of Livermore, one-fifth of the capital stock of which they claimed to own themselves, and have continuously received for their own use one-fifth of all the dividends declared by the bank, dividends which were earned entirely by using the money of the estate while the gross income to the estate has not exceeded 24 per cent upon the entire amount of its capital invested.

"In the form of loans by the Bank of Livermore of which as directors they had the management and control they have lent out moneys of the estate on personal security and have also used moneys of the estate for their own purposes. They divided among themselves 1,600 shares of stock of the Kennedy Mining and Milling Company at a price fixed by themselves, under the requirement to the court that they had made a sale of the stock to George C. Hickox. That price was the lowest at which any sale of that stock was made by them, and was paid with moneys borrowed from the Bank of Livermore, and they have received in dividends more than six times the amount of the price paid. They have unnecessarily delayed the foreclosure of the Garcia mortgage by permitting accruals of unpaid interest to accumulate so that the amount due thereon has increased from the original principal of $37,000 to $104,000. They have not exercised proper vigilance in supervising the management by Pitcher of the Bank of Livermore, permitting him as a member of the firm of Knutson, Cohen & Company, to incur an indebtedness of over $3,000. Upon that obligation a judgment was recovered by the Bank against Pitcher and his co-lebtors on May 1, 1893, for the sum of $13,552. The existence of either the inability of Pitcher or the judgment against him was not even known to the other trustees until the trial of this action.

"While a court of equity may not deem it necessary to remove a trustee for every violation of his trust, yet in view of theabilities which Messrs. Taylor and Thomas H. B. Varney have incurred to the trust estate and the conflict which has arisen between their personal interests and their duties as trustees, I deem it my duty to grant the prayer of the plaintiffs for their removal.

"An interlocutory decree will be entered in accordance with this opinion.

"J. M. SEAWELL, Judge."

The Nevada a Valuable Addition to Our Navy.

HILL'S DENIAL.

The Northern Pacific Not Under His Control.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire. BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 21.—The United States monitor Nevada, in tonnage the largest government vessel ever built by the Bath Iron Works, was launched today. The proceeding was witnessed by a large number of people, the size of the vessel and her unique character having attracted wide interest.

The vessel was released and started down the ways in a novel manner by Miss Annie C. Bouteille, youngest daughter of Congressman Charles A. Boutelle, who christened her. The hull, held in place until the last moment by a careful adjustment of the shoring and a strong cable, was set free by severing the rope at the proper moment. Miss Bouteille used a silver hatchet provided by the builders. As the monitor started down the ways Miss Bouteille dashed a bottle of American champagne across the bow and christened the vessel "Nevada."

These were the words of J. S. Hill to me at his home in Pine street, this city, Thursday evening.

Steamer Goes Down in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 21.—A special to the News from Quebec says:

A special from Seven Islands, north shore, reports the complete wreck of the steamer St. Olaf, Captain Lemaitre, of Quebec.

It is supposed all on board were lost. Only one body, that of a woman, with a small bag and some other articles so far has been recovered.

Seven Islands is on the north shore in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 300 miles below Quebec.

KRUGER'S HARVARD OVATION SHUT OUT BY YALE

City Goes Wild on Boer President's Arrival.

Welcomed By a Sea of Wildly Cheering Spectators.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire. PARIS, Nov. 21.—Mr. Kruger arrived in Paris at 10:40 A. M. and was given a magnificent reception. The boulevards were crammed with vast crowds.

Mr. Kruger and party entered the train at Dijon at 6:30 A. M. The special cars were attached to the train, the luxe from the River to Paris.

In spite of the early hour a fair number of inhabitants assembled on the platform to cheer the departing statesman. Mr. Kruger uttered a few words of thanks to the steady downpour, and despite the steady downpour, a large number of spectators gathered at the grounds where in the afternoon the elevens representing Yale and Harvard Universities battled for the supremacy of the gridiron field.

During the forenoon snow flakes began to mix in with the rain drops. Still the Weather Bureau optimistically predicted that the rain would not continue, and in this seemed to be justified when at 10 o'clock the sun was trying to break through the cloud banks.

At 10:45 the rain had ceased, though the sky was still clouded. There was a light, cool breeze blowing from the north.

Mr. Kruger thanked the delegation through his interpreter. The crowd, which was of respectable number for such a small town, gave the distinguished traveler unstinted applause.

Elsewhere along the route there were no same success as yesterday. People were waiting on the sides of the track and on bridges and other points of vantage. They waved their hats and cheered as the train rushed past at highest speed.

Near Paris these gatherings grew more frequent and of larger numbers, until the train approached the terminus, the Gare de Lyon. Then a remarkable spectacle was presented. Not only the windows, but the roofs of the houses commanding a view of the track were crowded with spectators. In addition the railroad employees, passengers, cleaners, porters and guards had clambered on the trains lying on the side of the tracks and at the coaling platforms—at every point where a glimpse of the train itself could be secured. This, however, was merely a foretaste of the spectacle whereto Mr. Kruger's eyes when the train steamed into the station itself. Notwithstanding precautions to admit only ticket holders, a large assembly filled the station, while through the open doors could be seen a huge concourse of people gathered in the court yard outside.

The Mayor and municipal councillors, a number of Senators, Deputies, army officers and reporters were mustered on the platform. Mr. Kruger was to have passed through the station, which had been specially arranged as a salon of honor, being profusely decorated with flowers, and where he was to be formally received by the Mayor and municipal councillors, but for some reason the Mayor welcomed him on the platform instead, and Mr. Kruger, to the great disappointment of those waiting in the salon of honor, passed out through another door to the front of the station, where a four-horse landau was drawn up. Mr. Kruger entered this vehicle and was at once driven off for his hotel, with enthusiasm shown along the outer boulevard, across the Place de la Republique, which was a perfect sea of spectators, and through the central boulevard. He arrived at the Hotel Scribe at 1:30 A. M.

FUTURE OF THE HARBOR.

Congressman Metcalf Tells of Great Prospects for the Water Front.

The future of the Oakland water front? In these last crowded moments of preparation for my departure for Washington I should not even attempt to answer the question you propound, because the adequate improvement of the Oakland harbor opens up such unbounded possibilities for the future of this city that their discussion should have more time for elaboration than it is now in my power to give.

This city being situated on the mainland would naturally be the terminus of the overland railroads in fact, as now it is in name; and here there should be also the warehouses and factories which cluster around such a terminus.

The only thing that originally prevented this was the shallowness of the water on this side of the bay. The improvement of the Oakland harbor means the practical removal of this obstacle, making it possible for the largest sea-going vessels to lie at our future wharves in a perfectly land-locked and thoroughly secure harbor.

If the final contemplated improvement of our harbor were a completed fact today, our city would be at least sharing in the immense transport business now exclusively confined to and so greatly benefiting San Francisco.

The whole matter may be summed up in a single statement, to-wit: With the completion of the contemplated improvement, that disseminator of commerce would here be met—namely, the bringing

The teams appeared on the field at 2 o'clock amid an uproar from both sides. Yale won the toss and defended the north goal, having the wind at their backs. Hale kicked off for Yale to Daly at Harvard's twenty-yard line, but the whistle blew for off side and Hale re-kicked from fifty-yard line. Then the game went merrily on. It was simply all one way.

The score at the end of the first half was Yale, 12; Harvard, 0. It was easy for Yale all the way through.

W. S. LEAKE AND THE SPEAKERSHIP

Call Manager Assailed for Loyalty to John D. Spreckels.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Now they have got W. S. Leake, manager of the Call, mixed up in the fight for the Speakership of the Assembly. A San Francisco newspaper quotes a Republican Assemblyman-elect "from one of the mining countries" to the effect that he had been in favor of Aiden Anderson of Solano, but was now opposed to him because W. S. Leake, a Democrat, is managing his fight.

It is understood that the member quoted is W. C. Rabson of Calaveras. Mr. Rabson is prominent in the Miners' Association, and it is alleged that he pledged himself to Anderson unreservedly. The same influences that are thrusting Leake forward on one side are busy trying to line the Governor on the other. Plainly it is an effort to re-open the old wound raised by the defeat of Colonel Burnet for the Senatorship, and to make the Speakership fight along the lines of the Senatorial contest.

The charge that Leake is making Anderson's fight may be classed as a political diversion. He is classed as a gold Democrat in politics, but as manager of the Call is regarded as the confidential agent of John D. Spreckels. Whatever he does in relation to the Speakership will be done in the interest of Mr. Spreckels, and not as a political partisan. Mr. Spreckels is a vigorous advocate of Anderson for the Speakership, and the Call naturally voices the views of its proprietor. As manager of the Call, Leake echoes the wishes of his chief. And he is a man whose loyalty is not of the half-way pattern.

Leake is one of the most astute politicians in the State, and his capacity as a political manager has been demonstrated again and again. Therefore the effort to put him in the front as the man to fight instead of Anderson may make the fight all the closer and more determined. It will inevitably bring Senator Bard into the fray. Senator Bard owes his election primarily to the Spreckels forces, which were directed by Leake. It was necessary to bring the fragmentary opposition to Colonel Burns to the support of some one man, and here is where the clever generalship of Leake showed itself. Anderson, a Speaker of the Assembly, materially assisted the combine which finally elected Bard. The close relations during the contest and since the election existing between Senators Perkins and Bard are surface indications that in case the Speakership contest is fought out along the lines of the Senatorial struggle they will stand together in support of Anderson, who is both a Perkins and a Bard man.

It is stated that C. W. Pendleton of Los Angeles, who is Anderson's chief rival, will come across the Tehachapi with fourty members at his back. There may be a qualification to this. Should the fight turn on the Senatorial contest it is doubtful if all those Southern California members can be held against Bard, who has the backing of his colleague and is powerful at Washington. If a war is carried on against Spreckels and the Call, under guise of an attack on Leake, it must include all the agencies which resulted in the election of Bard and made the road clearer of obstructions to the reelection of Perkins.

Here are the elements of a very powerful combination which a man of Leake's sagacity can be relied on to weld into a compact phalanx in case no quarter is earned on against the friends of his principal, John D. Spreckels.

If Mr. Rabson has changed from Anderson to Pendleton it will probably bring the hydraulic mining question into play, for Mr. Rabson has long been a champion of the hydraulic interests. Anderson is a valley man, but so far as is known has expressed no decided opinion on the mining question. But so far the Governor has not shown his hand, and it may be that he will not interfere personally in the Speakership fight, otherwise in the election of Pendleton.

OF ARID LANDS

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The National Irrigation Congress was in session today, owing to the adjournment of the Committee on Resolutions. While waiting for the committee report the delegation listened to Colonel John S. Cooper of Chicago, president of the National Park Association, who read an extended paper on "The Proposed National Minnesota Park."

When Colonel Cooper had concluded the Committee on Resolutions reported the following:

"We have satisfaction the fact that both the great political parties in their platforms in the last campaign favored in favor of a reclamation of arid America, in order that settlers might be enabled to live upon the public domain, and to that end we urge upon Congress that national appropriations commensurate with the magnitude of the problems should be made for the preservation of the forest and the re-forestation of the denuded areas as natural storage reservoirs and for the construction by the National Government, as a part of its policy of internal improvement, of storage reservoirs and other works for flood protection and save for use in aid of navigation and irrigation the waters which run to waste and for the development of artesian and underground sources of water supply. The water of all streams should forever remain subject to the public control, and the right to the use of water for irrigation should inhere in the land irrigated, and beneficial use be the basis, the measure and the limit of the right."

"We commend the efficient work on the various bureaus of the National Government in the investigation of the physical and legal problems and other conditions relating to irrigation and in promoting the adoption of more effective laws, customs and methods of irrigated agriculture and urge upon Congress the necessity of providing liberal appropriations for this important work."

"The work of building the reservoirs necessary to store the floods should be done directly by the Government under existing statutes relative to the employment of labor and hours of workmen under laws that will give to all American citizens a fair and equal opportunity to get first employment and then a home on the land."

CONDITION OF MILK.

Local Inspector Makes a Sensational Report.

A most startling condition of the existence of bacteria in the milk supplied in this city was discovered today by R. A. Archibald, City Bacteriologist, who has been conducting tests of the liquid fluid, at the laboratory of the Health Department during the past two days.

So far nine tests of milk taken by Milk Inspector Pierce from the various dairies have been made and in one of the samples alone Bacteriologist Archibald this morning found 63,000 bacteria to a cubic centimeter of milk—that is approximately 15 drops.

This showing is something most startling and even passes the greatest expectations of the Milk Inspector and Bacteriologist.

"This is an unusually bad showing," said Dr. Archibald, this afternoon, "for milk from a healthy cow contains no bacteria. In this particular sample, containing 63,000 bacteria, there are probably from ten to fifty different specimens of bacteria. Why it's enough to condemn the milk not alone for food, but for all other purposes as well."

"Of course, in producing milk on a large scale, it is almost impossible to give it to the consumer in a perfectly sterilized condition, because milk is a most delicate fluid."

In some of the other tests I have found bacteria ranging from 25,000 upward. The tests will all be completed within the next few days, but I dare say the result will be horrifying."

MORRISON CASE.

Selecting Jury to Try Alleged Kansas Murderers.

Associated Press Dispatches by The Tribune's Special Leased Wire KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 21.—A special to the Star from Eldorado, Kan., says:

Seven jurors agreeable to both prosecution and defense had been selected to try Jessie Morrison for the murder of Mrs. C. Ollie Castle when court opened this morning. The examination of veniremen was resumed and proceeded slowly furnishing but little interest for the crowd of spectators, who spent much of the time gazing curiously at Mrs. Morrison and Ollie Castle.

The prisoner has become used to the stares from the audience and pays but slight attention to her surroundings. Resting her head upon her hand, she sits quietly through the sessions, seldom speaking, even to her attorney or her aged father. The latter remains by her side constantly.

So far 160 veniremen have been examined and Judge Shinn, evidently determined that the delays shall not continue much longer, this morning took a hand in overruling challenges made by both prosecution and defense. All the seven men retained are farmers living near Eldorado.

Cold Steel Or Death.

"There is but one small chance to save your life, and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and constipation. Her doctor called on the miraculous power of Elieck's Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgery on knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. She is positively a new woman. Stomach, Liver, and Kidney troubles are over. Disappointments. Price 25c at J. S. Brod's Drug Store, cor. Seventh and Broadway.

Scaring a Crooked Jockey.

Baldwin had instructed the jockey to play a waiting game, and make his bid toward the finish. The horse simply outclassed his company, however, and he didn't show any indications of leg weariness whatever as he rounded the back stretch on the rail a couple of lengths in front of his field. Baldwin could see, however, that the crooked jockey was sawing the horse's head off in his effort to take him back to the track. When the horses were still a hundred feet from him Baldwin let out a yell to attract his jockey's attention, and then he finished his two guns in the sunlight and bawled at the jockey:

"Loggo that horse's head, you monkey devil, and go on and win, or I'll shoot you so full of holes that you won't hold molasses!"

"The jock gave me one look at those two guns that Baldwin was pointing straight at him. Then he gave Baldwin's horse his head, sat down to ride for all that was in him, and the horse under him cantered in ten lengths to the good, on the bit. As long as 'Lucky' Baldwin was on the Eastern turf after that, no jockey ever tried to yank one of his horses."

SATURDAY..... NOVEMBER 24, 1900

Lawyers must be pretty good men, after all, for they practice what they preach.

Mark Twain has had a cabinman's license revoked in New York because the J. J. Hu overcharged him fifty cents. The humorist evidently doesn't like people to do things by halves when he is concerned in the result.

A husky young Chicagoan boy succeeded in rounding up the entire corn market. His walk through life may be pleasant enough for himself, but he will cut a wide swath of distress as he goes for he will be treading upon other people's corns most of the time.

The Oakland Iron Works is participating liberally in the general prosperity, unusually large shipments of machinery having been made during the past few months. The protection afforded that particular industry by the Republican party is an instance of "machine politics" we are all in favor of.

BE ON GUARD!

The San Francisco Post has done well to direct the attention of the public to the bogus oil experts and to sound a warning note regarding the adventurous elements that have sprung into prominence since the success of our new industry became assured. Not only have wildcat companies by the score been started, but under the guise of experts individuals possessing but the shallowest knowledge of the workings of petroleum have been posed before the public and used as levers to raise money out of pockets none too well guarded. Practices such as these are nothing more nor less than fraudulent, and as owing to the law's technicalities it is well nigh impossible to lend the impossible in jail, the only remaining recourse is to put the community on guard.

In point of fact, the public should apply to the oil industry the elementary and long-established rules governing embarking in any kind of business, especially where it is of a nature comparatively unknown to the investor. Only first-class, reputable concerns should be dealt with, and any indication of shoddily or cheap-to-hire methods should be regarded as danger signals. A business proposition will be presented in a business-like way upon sound, practical lines, and it is always well to avoid any venture that offers something for nothing or promises abnormally large returns for a small outlay, for if the conditions were of that nature the outside public would never have a chance to participate. As a final piece of advice it is as well to quote our old friend Josh Billings: "Don't believe anything you hear or half you see."

CALIFORNIA'S NEW RAILROAD.

Los Angeles is again to become the terminal of a competing continental railway, this time connecting it in a direct line with the city of Salt Lake. It was the first city to realize the benefits of competition in fares and freights when the Santa Fe system was extended to this coast, and the new railroad now projected will doubtless immediately add to the prosperity of the southern metropolis. The Santa Fe brought the great boom which resulted in the development of the section south of Tehachapi, and with the advent of a third railway system there will naturally be much more attention attached to that part of the state. The Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway company has already been incorporated with a capital of $50,000,000, of which $6,000,000 has been actually subscribed for the work of construction which will be commenced within a very short time and pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Senator Clark, the Montana millionaire, is behind the project and has interested others with capital ample sufficient to meet all demands.

The new line will traverse the most noted and richest mining sections of southwest Utah and will open them up for development. The territory through which there has hitherto been too remote from transportation, and although with irrigation it can be made one of the most productive areas of the West, there has as yet been no attempt to develop it. The new line will arouse capital to all its possibilities, however, and Senator Clark's enterprise will undoubtedly open the way for many new mining and irrigating projects.

The Los Angeles Terminal railroad, with all its valuable franchises and properties, including a frontage on the San Pedro harbor for docks and warehouses, has been acquired by Senator Clark and will, as soon as the preliminaries are arranged, be transferred to the new corporation. With its main track and projected feeders the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway will have a total trackage of nearly 1,700 miles, and, with the exception of about 200 miles in Los Angeles county, it will be laid through entirely new and undeveloped territory. This project has long been talked of in financial circles, and several times almost assumed a definite form, but it was not until Senator Clark interested himself that the proposition became certain. The road will connect at the Mormon capital with the great trunk line from Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Denver and the southwest, and will form a connecting link, that is bound to be of great effect in transportation circles. Los Angeles has been signalized in the matter of competing railroads, for, in sense, it may be said to have received more than its share of those great axles which tend to the upbuilding and growth of communities. However, all California participates in the benefits, so while we look with somewhat envious eyes upon the rich prize our southern ally is about to receive, we can at the same time reserve to ourselves the satisfaction that we, too, will get a rich slice of the results.

A LESSON IN DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

The contractors who have engaged to furnish the city with Eastern-made hose have been granted an extension of time on their contract on the ground that the late storms have delayed the arrival of said hose from the East. Under the circumstances it might have been unjust to have held them to the letter of the contract, but it is an indulgence not in accord with strict business principles. The city needs this hose, and should any loss occur from its non-delivery at the time specified the contractors would in no wise be responsible.

However, it is not this phase of the situation that prompts this article. When the contract was let the Bowes Rubber Company, in connection with the California Cotton Mills, an Oakland institution employing several hundred hands, was a bidder. The California Cotton Mills manufactures an excellent quality of hose. Had it received the contract the city would have already been supplied and all the contingent danger and annoyance resulting from non-delivery would have been avoided.

More than that, home industry would have been patronized and encouraged. The California Cotton Mills pay taxes here and employ Oakland labor. They constitute an important asset in the progress and growth of the city, and are therefore entitled to more consideration than any foreign concern which employs neither California capital nor labor and pays no taxes in either the city or State.

The trifling saving resulting from letting the contract abroad is dearly bought. It entails a delay that might cause a loss many times the cost of the entire lot of hose, but aside from that it is an unfair discrimination against home manufacturing, which the community just now revitalizes as a most important factor in building up the city. There is an indirect return to the community for whatever patronage is extended to the California Cotton Mills, which is absolutely lacking when patronage is given abroad. The amount saved is too trifling to be weighed in the balance against a return that is bidding and constructive.

True, the Cotton Mills were given a portion of the contract. This is not intended as a criticism of the Board of Works for what was done in this particular instance, but the incident is used to illustrate the false economy and evil policy of the municipality buying abroad what can just as well be bought at home. It is a discredit to home industry and an unjust discrimination against domestic enterprise. It is prompted by a narrow spirit which takes no account of the true principle of commonwealth-building. If the community in its corporate capacity refuses to patronize home industry, why should the individual citizen do so?

The municipality should set an example to the citizen in such matters. Certainly the local official bodies should not be lacking in civic pride and local patriotism. The city of Oakland ought, above all things, to give whatever encouragement can legitimately be given to Oakland capital, Oakland labor and Oakland enterprise.

Sam Paul is a good, long-distance fighter. Now that he is safely beyond the reach of the British guns he is doing a lot of flamboyant talking about how every man, woman and child in the Transvaal will give up life if needs be in the struggle against the invader. It will be noticed, however, that despite his willingness to sacrifice the lives of the Boers in a hopeless struggle, he is not taking any chances at all regarding his own.

A boxing tournament with chickens as principals is to form one of the star features of the approaching poultry exposition. Contestants with chicken hearts are not uncommon in the ring, but this is the first time on record where the entire bird has figured in such a capacity. A chicken should put up a good fight, anyhow, for it is always ready for a broil.

The annual report of Chief of Police Hodgkins shows a highly satisfactory condition of affairs and one that the community can well be proud of. There are few better advertisements for a city than that crime fails to flourish in its midst, for it gives a feeling of security to the man who has his home to figure on.

No Such Thing as Luck.

"The old saying that 'the odds are against the guesser' is firmly believed in by nearly all gamblers," said a turban man who relies himself upon having reduced betting to a mathematical formula.

The axiom is a good deal deeper than most people suppose. Taken literally, in games of pure chance, it is false; applied to human nature it is true. Suppose, for example, that two men pitch pikes, the chances for heads and tails are perfectly even, and it can make no difference which of the players does the guessing. Where the guesser appears to have greatly the worst of it is in such a game as faro or roulette. The effort to forecast each turn is likely to irritate his nerves, the guesser becomes irritated and demoralized, makes reckless bets, presses bad luck and winds up broke.

In fact the chief advantage of a "system" for gambling is that saves nerve force. The bets are placed according to rule, and the player and the game are on the same cold, mechanical basis. In playing the races the odds are seemingly against the guesser, for the reason that they are influenced by all sorts of hints, tips and premonitions, mostly wrong. It isn't really a case of guessing, but a case of misplaced confidence.

"Luck is something that doesn't exist except in real life. The late Professor Proctor once delivered a lecture in Philadelphia on the 'Mathematics of Chance,' and proved conclusively there was no such thing as luck. Afterward he took a dice box and attempted to demonstrate the fact to some skeptical sports and went broke in eighty minutes by the watch. There is absolutely no reason why people should have streaks of good or bad luck. I can demonstrate to you on paper that the thing is impossible, and you can demonstrate to me by ocular evidence that it happens every day. So there you are."

It's a funny fact, by the way, that the two principal systems at Monte Carlo are based on diametrically opposite theories of luck. One is called the "maturity of chance." To illustrate, suppose red turns up three times in succession, the chance of it appearing again is greatly diminished and grows less with each repetition. Consequently the player bets on black. The other is the system of runs. Its votaries hold that a color which has once "predicted" is apt to keep on, at least five or six times in succession. Each brand of cranks professes its case by the daily record kept year in and year out at the Casino. You pays your money and you takes your choice."

TWO PLAYS AT THE MACDONOUGH

Fine Performance is Scheduled for the Dewey Theater.

The presentation in this city of Hoyt's "A Stranger in New York," is announced for next Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Macdonough Theater.

The piece last season enjoyed a phenomenally long run in New York, both at the Garrick and at Hoyt's Madison Square Theater, and has just returned from London, England, where it was presented at the Duke of York's Theater, scoring a most emphatic success.

This the best work of Charles Hoyt, one which is said to afford this very popular delineator of American humor more than ordinary opportunity for displaying his remarkable versatility, and traits of a stranger in a strange city who, falling into the speedy life of the metropolis, is taken against all sorts of things, even the French ball, and his rustic corners are supposed to be knocked off, and it receives marked attention from everybody he comes in contact with. The local coloring is said to be admirable, and the various characters, a reflection upon a certain set known to all who are familiar with the life of the American metropolis.

A TINY ACTOR.

Mr. Walter Bentley, the celebrated English actor held in deservedly high esteem in his own country, where he was for a long time a co-worker with Henry Irving, has returned to America from his Austrian triumph, which are both numerous, and long continued, bringing with him the fine dramatics, practically, of the entire English-speaking world. It has been some years since Mr. Bentley appeared in the United States, but time has only served to mellow his art by deeper study and wider travel, and so he comes back to us, presumably, a powerful, finished and accomplished artist.

He will appear Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Macdonough Theater, in David Garrick and other fine plays.

DEWEY THEATER.

The "Wheel of Fortune," one of the strongest comedy-dramas of the past Eastern season, and entirely new to the coast, will be offered to the patrons of the popular Dewey Theater next Monday evening. The play, from overture to curtain, is one continuous round of laughable situations and dialogue, interspersed with the acme of fine select realism, in sensational episodes and strikingly original climaxes. The story is strong and well worked out. Comedy, tragedy and heroism are so cleverly blended that the drama has played to the capacity and will no doubt duplicate its great success on local ground. The falling structure with its human freight, the explosion and rescue at the log jam, the railroad roundhouse, with its real locomotive and sensational climax of the exploding engine, are but a few of the many realistic surprises which figure in the play's action. The entire company is a large one and many new specialties will be introduced by Gracie Plaisted, Maurice Stewart, True Boardman, W. R. Winsor and several artists of note. The attraction, as a whole, will be one of the strongest bills ever offered by the present management.

Following is the cast:

Harold Merriam, Mt. Lander, Stevens, Walter Lewis, ... DeWitt Clinton Tom Scott, ... Frank C. Thompson, ... Jim D. Cottell, Emmett Dale, ... James Corrigan, Patrick Murphy, ... Maurice Stewart, McGinnies, ... O. W. Howe, Glinay, ... Lillian Osborne, Bath Dale, ... Miss Penny Gillette, Grace Elliott, ... Miss Elsie Ellmore, Willie Green, ... Miss Irene Plaisted, Melinda Dale, ... Miss Paula McHugh.

THE CALIFORNIA.

Business has been good at the California all the week. The Royal Marine Bank of Italy has won a high place in the ranks of local banks, and the attendance has been gratifying.

Beginning tomorrow afternoon those stirring old favorites, Harry's Mastodon Minstrels, including George (Waltz Me Again) Wilson, will begin an engagement at the California, and there is no doubt that the house will be crowded all the week.

THE TIVOLI.

The Tivoli opened its comic opera season with a superb performance of "The Jolly Musketeer," which is likely to crowd the theatre. It includes such proved and tried old favorites as Ferris Hartman and Annie Myers and new artists who are destined to win enduring popularity. Among them are Tenbrook Dale, the new comedienne, Maud Williams, soprano, and Edward Webb, an excellent light comedian.

THE ALCAZAR.

The Alcazar has been doing a big business with the "Lover of the Month," "The Railroad of Love,"

Lillian Carnegie has made a great success in this production, and has established herself a firm favorite with the Alcazar audience. Next week "Seven Twenty-eight," another brilliant daily comedy, will be given.

THE ALHAMBRA.

"A Stranger in New York" has been doing a large business all the week at the Alhambra. The play is one of the best of the hot farces, and the company presenting it are an unusually strong one. The vaudeville specialties are exceptionally good. Beginning tomorrow afternoon, Herrmann, the Magician, follows.

Two English Dukes Will Come to America

Politics Discussed in London

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The pessimism reflected by the Washington special dealing with China finds a keen echo in Great Britain's Cabinet, and the gloomy foreboding that the United States will be compelled to withdraw from the concert of the powers is only one of the causes of this feeling, for the British Ministers are now inclined to believe the present lines of negotiation cannot result satisfactorily.

CHINESE MUDDLE.

"The United States," said an official of the Foreign Office to a representative of the Associated Press, "cannot be any more anxious than England to get out of the China muddle. The Cabinet Ministers are reluctantly coming to believe that the endeavors to compel China to punish individual offenders are merely waste of time. Death by edict is a farce and a fairy tale. The powers' forces now in China are utterly inadequate to overrun the country and enforce their demands. England has no intention of augmenting her troops to such an extent as will be necessary if the Europeans themselves undertake to inflict punishment. It looks very much as if we shall all have to climb down. The only question is how it can be done with the best dignity and under circumstances giving the most satisfactory results.

The policy of indefinite declination, which the American Journals seem to attribute to Germany, is not in the slightest shared by Great Britain. This view is not of a majority of the British press, who without taking pains to find out the inner opinion of the Cabinet, generally condemn what they are pleased to call the "weak-kneed policy of America."

The failure of the British steamer Tanbwa by the Colombian government officials at Panama is not regarded seriously here. The British gunboat Pheasant will investigate the matter and in due course of time Colombia will be asked for an explanation. But the affair is not likely to produce any striking developments.

The request of the United States Em-bassador, Joseph H. Choate, for the suppression of the Filipino Junta at Hongkong has been put in the hands of the Colonial office. It will probably take some weeks to ascertain the facts with doubtful results. An official said:

"Hongkong, of course, is part of a free country and we cannot take too arbitrary steps, even to please America. Most of the international plots are hatched right here in London; but we are quite powerless to suppress them."

SIR ALFRED MILNER.

The persistent reports that Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner in South Africa, will be invalided home permanently are groundless. He will be afforded a holiday as soon as feasible. He is the last man the government contemplates withdrawing from South Africa, and the state of his health by no means justifies the rumors.

NEW LORD MAYOR.

London's new Lord Mayor, Frank

Green, takes a very radical and friendly attitude towards the European invasion of the city's finance, trade and transportation.

"It is merely a matter of ultraconservatism," he said to a representative of the Associated Press. "American capital is bound to improve business here, and it is welcomed warmly as anything tending to bring the two nations the most good, even though it may appear to result only to the advantage of one of them. Together, England and America are more powerful in every way than the rest of the world."

"Regarding placing government loans in America, patriotism naturally compels me to say English bankers should have the first chance; but if Americans give better terms, why, let them have them by all means. All things being equal, I see no reason why Americans should not be allowed to subscribe to the loan which is likely to be asked for at the resumption of Parliament, and if by open competition she can secure the bulk I am sure no interest lying in the direction of suburban traffic, especially in Manchester and Liverpool and the large cities of the north, where he is acquiring important concessions.

NATIONAL ART GALLERY.

The announcement that Francis Howard, the son of Mrs. T. P. O'Connor by a previous marriage, is representing the leading artists in his visit to the United States in order to induce the United States Government to establish a national art gallery, appears to be premature. The Daily Chronicle asked Messrs. Sargent and Whistler whether a national gallery had their approval and both made an obvious affirmative reply. But there is no question of an agency and hardly one of large profits. Whatever the truth of this, it is certain that the investigation has developed into a far larger scope than when it commenced, and now involves grave issues, in which English as well as American jockeys are concerned.

All sorts of rumors are current about the Jockey Club investigation into Lord Durham's charges against Lester Heintz, among which is the allegation that a well known sportsman bribed Jockey with large amounts during the past season to win the race.

by Whistler's would not be particularly exciting.

Two Dukes will soon arrive in the United States, the Duke of Manchester and his bride, who with Mr. Kruger, has divided the honors of the week in public interest, and the Duke of Newcastle, who sails December 6th. The latter intends to spend a few months in Florida, returning in April. He will not be accompanied by the Duchess.

CHURCH DEBT IS LIFTED BY THE BAPTISTS

Mortgage is Burned and Members are Happy.

President Wheeler's address to the students at Berkeley yesterday, as officially reported, was as follows:

"As we approach another fatal Thanksgiving day our hearts and our hopes are all united in the work of those who are to represent us on the arena.

We are many individuals; each has his own lessons to learn and his own dinner to get; one worries about analytical mechanics, another about the theory of equations; the ambition of one seeks carnestly unto the third grade, the heart of another will fail if he fails short of unalmitious firsts; one has his eye on an editorship, another on a class presidency, another on a Phi Beta Kappa key, another on shoulder straps; some think the ideal man is the one who knows most about crushing, drilling, capellation and sev- eration; others find him in the one who consores with Aquinas and Scotus, Hegel and Kant. A modern university is indeed a strange mixing-bowl, in which all the ambitions, all the flaws of life, all the scientific zeal, all the forms of personal strength meet and gain expression. We are many individuals with many individual aims, but we can all be one and are one in our soliloquy for Pringle's knee."

"It may be a very noisy thing and a very undignified thing to do to join the great concentric virtutum which rises from the roosters' section on the great football day, but it is our way—a crude way, but all the same our way, our well-intended way of saying that we are one, one people, one household, one life. We have some one thing we are interested in, one thing we are in earnest about. We are utterly, finally and treacherously committed to the view that there is one particular spot of that field where that ball must go."

"If the old university was so named because it was the assemblage into one band of all the guilds and clubs and schools, the modern university holds the title because it is an assemblage into one of all the colleges, all the courses, all the life aims and all the generous ways of reaching them."

"A university is a place that rightfully knows no aristocracy as between studies, no aristocracy as between persons, and no aristocracy as between persons. All that can make one man's study better than another's will be the devotion and clear-headedness with which he pursues it. All that can make one doctrine nobler than another will be its deeper reach toward a solid foundation in those eternal verities on which the world stands; the lighthouse is the symbol, not the wind-gauge. All that can make one student better than another is cleanliness of soul, clearness of thought and cleanliness of life."

"The home is democratic, not because there are no weak ones in it, but because no one is overlooked and despised because he is feeble, and because all are united by the common hearth-stone and in the mother's love. The university is democratic, not because there is within it no diversity of talents and of worth, but because all are judged by higher standards than those of blood or birth or influence, because every man has a man's chance and all are united in ideal loyalty to real truth."

"I may be speaking to no present need, but if there be any of you who have been led astray into the service of the false gods of social distinctions, I abjure you in the name of the academic faith that you forsake your sins and return to the altars of Athena. Let the university be what it is set to be, the home of the intellectual democracy. Do not bring in here any ghostly similitudes of those discriminations which divide people in Miss Ella Mae Miller, the charming daughter of J. K. and Florence Hardman-Miller, will be led to the altar on Thanksgiving day by Scott Goldsby Cloud, and thereby will be marked the second transgression in the "Old Maids' Club" of this city."

Miss Miller for a long time has been one of the thirteen young ladies comprising the "Old Maids' Club," and the blow sustained by this club last June, when Miss Micklethwaite became the bride of Dr. Fearn, was still fresh in the memory of the other members when they met last Thursday evening at Miss Miller's home to bid a formal farewell to this second prospective transgressor.

On this occasion Miss Edith Bearmays delivered a most affecting speech, during which the members showered bits of lace and dainty handkerchiefs upon Miss Miller.

The latter made an appropriate reply, and it would not be a great surprise should the Old Maids' Club be numbered.

Miss Miller is a graduate of the Oakland High school and a member of the First Presbyterian Church and its volunteer society. She has a wide circle of friends.

The prospective groom is a young business man of San Francisco, a grandson of Attorney Z. N. Goldsby and nephew of ex-Lieutenant Governor Jeter of Santa Cruz.

The wedding is to be a quiet affair, and the young couple will reside in San Francisco, where Mr. Cloud has already prepared a comfortable home.

The outer world according to prejudice of family, rifles, race and occupation. Johnson. A. H. Bell of Oakland will make his report of the special Committee on Municipal Accounting. On Friday City Clerk M. L. Hansen, of Berkeley will speak on "Hints for Clerks," and Professor J. RECEIVED FRIENDS AT ALDEN HOME.

ALDEN, Nov. 24.—The "at home" party given by the Misses Robins last night, at their home in Alden, was a decided success. The parlor and hallway were decorated with evergreens and Chinese lanterns. The forty guests enjoyed themselves with games and refreshments.

Returned From Europe.

Senator George C. Perkins lectured last evening before the Thursday Evening Club at 322 Peralta street, West Oakland. There was a large attendance and much interest was taken in the lecture. The subject was "The United States Senate."

Senator Perkins said:

"I venture the prediction that in six months our soldiers will be withdrawn from the Philippines."

As was natural and proper, Senator Perkins confined himself to a description of various features of the National Government and explained to his youthful audience the methods of legislation and of carrying on public affairs in Washington. Save for the reference to the termination of the rebellion in the Philippines and a declaration about an antidote for the excessive accumulation in the hands of a few of great classes of capital the address was merely an explanation of facts which every well informed older citizen ought to know.

The antidote for trusts was none other than the eventual dissipation of the wealth of rich men through their children, who would necessarily distribute the immense fortunes of their millionaire parents. This, so the Senator declared, would in a large measure counteract whatever evil influences there might be in the accommodation referred to.

Senator Perkins also referred incidentally to another matter of general interest.

On the 2d of next month there will be celebrated in Washington the centennial of the installation of the Federal Government in the beautiful city on the shores of the Potomac. The Senator is chairman of the Executive Committee of the greater committee of distinguished public men having in charge the program of the observances of the notable anniversary, and he hopes to witness a celebration that will be a memorable one.

In reviewing the work of the various Cabinet officers, the Senator paid a very fitting compliment to Secretary of State Hay for his able conduct of the Nation's diplomatic business in the Chinese conflict. The address was concluded by an appeal to the young members of the club to make the most of their school advantages. Before the meeting was dismissed the club elected their distinguished guest an honorary member.

FATHER WANTS TO SEE HIS CHILDREN.

Lemuel Tillotson has applied to be appointed guardian of his minor children, Alice and Harry, who he claims are now in the care of their mother from whom he is divorced. Mrs. New of Alameda was appointed guardian of the children at the time of Tillotson's death.

It appears that certain persons have been dumping garbage on a vacant lot adjacent to the school house, to the great detriment of the health of the students. The worst feature is the fact that one or some one has lately put up a sign offering the lot as a dumping ground.

According to Stuart Gemmill, Assistant Sanitary Inspector, the work is chiefly done under cover of night. He declares, however, that in view of the prohibitory ordinance it is difficult to apprehend and to arrest and to prosecute.

MRS. SUSAN MILLS' BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED.

A reception was tendered to Mrs. Susan Mills Thursday evening, at Mills College, by the students of that institution, the occasion being Mrs. Mills' seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. In honor of the event, a half holiday was granted. During the reception a short program of literary and musical numbers was given.

Miss Howe read an original poem on behalf of the students, and Professor Kepp spoke on behalf of the faculty. Measured words of congratulations were extended to Mrs. Mills.

WOMAN ORATOR TELLS OF THE CONSTITUTION AT MISS HORTON'S SCHOOL

Mrs. Judith Ellen Foster, lecturer on constitutional law at the Washington (D. C.) College of Law, delivered an instructive lecture before the older pupils of Miss Horton's school, corner of Twelfth and Elbert streets, yesterday afternoon, her subject being, "Machinery of Our Government."

The main class room was well filled with pupils of both sexes, and their parents and friends. Miss Horton introduced the speaker, who in part said:

"Machinery as we understand it implies some bringing together of mechical systems, a plan, an idea. It is the great fact that there are many people who man-machinery of government.

"We have just passed through a great election. The great machine of government," continued the speaker, in the time of Washington, there was no regular system of government, but the people began to have views about its constitution. And at the beginning, men and women will vote for the highest office in the gift of the people. And men will vote for the party nominees in view of the platform.

"The speaker then pointed out the fact that our machinery of government is dual—one that of the United States, the federal; the other the government of the various States; and there are subdivisions into counties, cities, wards and precincts. She said that the supreme government is exercised through the federal government.

"The machinery of government is, in application of the vital energy of the people. It is the generation of thought, purpose, a will, a desire. This gets into the machine of politics. Politics is a

NEWS NOTES IN LITERARY FIELD.

Publications That are Attracting Attention of Readers.

Raphael Tuck & Sons Company, Limited, of 122 and 123 Fifth avenue, New York, who are known throughout the United States as fine art and book publishers, have just issued a series of art publications which are at once novel, artistic and useful. These publications consist of calendars, Christmas cards and various other articles which are attractive and interesting in the holiday time.

The calendars, which are sent out this year by the company are the most gorgeous of the kind ever seen on this coast. They show that lithographing with Tuck & Sons is reduced to a science as the work is the finest in this line. The calendars include "What Matter Glory in the Year," "Days of Long Ago," "Tennyson," and "Days of others." The "Booksheets" formed by the firm are unique and show perfection in the printer's art. They consist of a series and make a splendid Christmas gift. The Christmas cards are of a high standard and consist of novel and instructive subjects. They are printed in high color and the paper and designs show that the best that the market affords is given. Also another showing made by the Raphael Tuck & Sons Company is a calendar and there is no reason why this work should not receive the full share of commend and in turn they to receive the reward that artistic work is sure to bring.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES.

"Grimm's Fairy Tales" is a new and sumptuous dress will prove a charming Christmas gift for the little ones. These classic tales, which have been the delight of generations of children and will be the delight of generations yet unborn, have a perennial fascination that is probably possessed by no other form of children's literature. Nothing touches the quick imagination and beautiful faith of a child like a fairy story, and surely no one has ever equaled Grimm in the art of the dramatic production. There is a certain demand for new editions of these tales, and the edition illustrated by H. J. Andrews and S. Jacoby and edited by Edric Vredenburg is beautiful enough to charm the胆dest test. The illustrations are numerous, and many of them are superb colored plates. Published by Raphael Tuck & Sons, New York.

FATHER TUCK'S ANNUAL.

"Father Tuck's Annual" is a book light as a Christmas gift, or a gift on any day of the year, for the matter of that. But the volume is peculiarly suited to the joyful holiday season, as it is full of good cheer. It contains new stories and poems by Nora Hoppe, L. N. Elton, Julian Elton, and Mr. A. H. Hovey, and is illustrated by Louis Wain, M. Bowley, H. Cowham and Helena Maguire. The volume is edited by Edric Vredenburg, who shows marked talent for this sort of work and has acquitted himself admirably in his task. There is not a dull paragraph in the book, and in range and variety there is nothing to be desired. Published by Tuck & Sons Tuck & Sons, with sumptuous colored plates, published by Raphael Tuck & Sons, New York.

COBBLER OF NIMES.

"The Cobbler of Nimes," by Mary Imay Taylor, is an Melville love-story which has as an historical setting the struggle of the French peasants of Languedoc for religious liberty, depicted by Louis XIV. When the story opens, René de St. Cyr, the hero, a young lad of noble family and a Huguenot, but unfortunately of Antesquean, her destined husband, is also a Huguenot, and between him and the Catholic hunchbacked cobbler, who is the titular hero, the hours are divided. This cobbler, unlike the conventional home-backs of the romancers, is not malignant; his sorrows have inspired him with a fellow-feeling for all sufferers; and when his kindness to the persecuted Huguenot, Antesquean, seems inexplicable, he explains it by saying, "I aware to the saints that I help up the unmerciful." As a place of characterizing, he is both beautiful and unfeignedly gentle, faithful, compassionate nature descends itself in the very first chapter, and at last be deliriously laid down his life to facilitate the escape of his friends.

The Protestant lovers, the Catholic cobbler who dies for them, and the good-natured priest who walks at their escape, do not necessarily belong to this particular set; this particular set, they are well individualized human beings who may be found in all countries and in all times of persecution.

The story moves swiftly and lightly. Matters of historical detail the author leaves to the historian. Her object is to write a tale full of human interest and a love-story, thrilling with subdued passion and touched with antique grace.

In this work Miss Taylor fully sustains her well-earned reputation as a teller of what may be called sentimental tales. Published by A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, Ill.

CHIVALRY OF ST. DENIS.

The scenes of this historical romance are told in Europe and America, in the beginning of the eighteenth century. St. Denis is a striking figure in the history of Louisiana. Born in Canada, educated in France, he spent his manhood's career in pioneering movements in the New World. Possessed of splendid gifts, physical and mental, and of a most romantic and adventurous temperament, he is the very type of true chivalry.

In the career of St. Denis, the author has found magnificent material for a romance filled with incidents of war, love and adventure. He is ever the central figure, whether on the crowded streets of Paris or amid the splendors of Louis XIV's Court, in the gardens of old Spain, on the battlefield of Villa Victoria, or in the primitive forests of Louisiana and the plains of Mexico.

Next in importance are brilliant figures of the time. Ferdinand, the King who came to the heart of St. Denis by assault, and whose fidelity to her giant hood's lover, maintained through every change of fortune, moves the reader no less than her dazzling beauty.

The historical picture presented in the novel is crowded with the figures of kings, statesmen, warriors, courtiers—all sorts and conditions of men; and the skill of the novelist is nowhere more apparent than in the harmony and due proportion with which these are set in the picture frame.

A rare treat is provided for the reader of "The Chevalier de St. Denis," published by A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago, Ill.

HEIRS OF YESTERDAY.

"A Child of the Sun," by Charles Eugene Banks, is a story of Indian life that will prove a delight to the children, for whom the book is written. It tells the story of the Arapahos a tribe which differed from all other nations enormous power of assimilating all peoples and races, remain what they have always been—a peculiar people." The lion force of tradition in the Jewish race, the influence of the ghetto on its descendants of today, the injustice and ignorance too often displayed in the attitude of Gentiles toward Jews—these are the underlying motives of this most interesting novel.

But the novel itself is not weighed down by a bit of gloom. The author plays at once into a swift, breezy story, full of incident, with perfectly individualized characters who leave no doubt that they are alive and not mere puppets, and it is only when the story is ended that the reader realizes he has traversed with the author a big area of thought and spent some hours profitably as well as pleasantly. The story is of a young Jew, clever, cultured, strong of intellect and character, who is anxious to be a real individual, but not a snob, and to fit in with the society of the Ghetto rather than with Jews. How the forces of inheritance and tradition of Gentile prejudice and Jewish exclusiveness, aided by the omnipotent force of love, break down the iron will of this descendant of the Ghetto, is told in a highly dramatic and entertaining fashion in "Heirs of Yesterday." Published by A. C. McClurg & Co., publishers, Chicago, Ill.

MCLAUGHLIN AND OREGON.

Among the many interesting chapters in the history of our country's development, none possesses greater attraction than that which deals with the Oregon territory of which Oregon forms a part, from its occupation by the United States to its valuable possession, and the part played by McLoughlin of the Hudson's Bay Company, are here set forth in a most enjoyable narrative.

The men and women whose names are prominently associated with the Oregon movement are presented in life-like portrayals and the conditions prevailing under the old regime—the semi-feudal government of the Hudson's Bay Company at Fort Vancouver—a curious and fascinating portion of the story. No less interesting are the idealistic sketches of Indian life and character and the passionate fear and jealousy exhibited by the red men toward the white, culminating in the Whitman massacre.

The author gives an exceedingly vivid account of the picturesque life in the mountains; of the trappers, the Indians, and the missionaries regarding all of which she has had unusual facilities for acquiring information. Readers will be delighted with the narrative, which, while historically accurate and valuable possesses all the attractiveness of a romance.

DAVID HARUM.

The extraordinary success secured by "David Harum" on its publication a year or so ago has necessitated the publication of successive editions of this won-derful book since. This second edition has been treated by any American book since the days of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and even that classic is inferior to "David Harum." In intricate interest and literary skill, Edward Noyes Westcott, the author of "David Harum," died before the book attained the tremendous popularity that makes it a landmark in American literature, but he left behind him a monument that will keep his memory green long after costly manuscripts have crumbled to dust. The story is vitally interested in the progress of human nature. All the characters are flesh and blood, emotions, and David Harum himself is one of the most interesting figures in the whole range of fiction. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York, with some admirable illustrations from drawings by C. D. Farrand.

THE STORY OF THE SOLDIER.

"The Story of the Soldier," by Brigadier to the General George A. Forsyth, belongs to "The Story of the West" series, edited by Ripley Hitchcock. It is a book that will appeal with special force to the patriotic youth of the country, though it is equally valuable to adults who take a patriotic pride in the growth and achievements of the American army.

This book is in a complete history of our army, written and acknowledged authority on the subject. General Forsyth traces the development of the regular army from the crude colonial militia, armed with flintlocks, and with little or no discipline, to the perfectly trained regular of today, equipped with the highest arms of their work, and thoroughly drilled in their work. The author shows what our civilization was to its soldiers and how they have braved danger and endured hardship not for glory, but for the beneficent ends of peace. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

GALVESTON.

"Galveston, the History of a Stricken City," by the author of "The Valley of the Shadow," is a stirring picture that shows a wider and varied landscape. Almut Hartzen. The author begins his book with a chapter devoted to the city of Galveston that makes one understand just how the awful catastrophe came about. Then comes a chapter on the gates of the Gulf of Mexico which equal in suddenness and fury even the terrible typhoons of the China Sea. His description of the storm that overwhelmed the city is a strikingly vivid piece of work. Thrilling incidents of remarkable rescues and daring efforts to save the lives of the calamity are made plain. Mr. Hartzen also gives an interesting historical sketch of Texas, and paints a splendid future for the new Galveston. The book is profusely illustrated from photographs, and is from the American Publishers' Association.

THE FORTUNE OF A DAY.

"The Fortune of a Day," by Grace Elvina Chamberlain is a story of peculiar interest to Californians, for the reason that its gifted author is one of them, having long made her home in Pasadena. The author has won a high reputation in the local literary field by her stories of California life, but she has gone abroad for the material for her latest story. Its scene being laid in Italy, "The Fortune of a Day" is none the less interesting on that account, the author's literary skill and charm of style compensating for the lack of its foreign setting. The book is a story that deals largely with Italian peasant life, in which the church figures conspicuously. The plot is very interesting and the characters are finely drawn. The book is one that will add to the author's reputation and find many readers. It is published by the well-known firm of Herbert S. Stone & Co., Chicago, Ill.

HEIRS OF YESTERDAY.

"A Child of the Sun," by Charles Eugene Banks, is a story of Indian life that will prove a delight to the children, for whom the book is written. It tells the story of the Arapahos a tribe which differed from all other nations of red men. According to their tribal tradition, they were descended from the sun, Hoshita being their first earthly father. The Arapahos were triumphant in their numerous combats with their earthly foes, but they were pursued by a spirit of evil which the Indians call "the bad spirit." The name of the town is most entertaining told by the sun. The book is superbly illustrated in color, and is published by Herbert S. Stone & Co., Chicago.

LITTLE TOT'S MENAGERIE.

"Little Tot's Menagerie" is one of the interesting children's books of the season. It contains one of the most unique animal alphabets imaginable, and is just the thing for small children. The book is highly illustrated, and the printing is such as to attract the attention of little ones. The publication contains over one hundred pages and there are as many illustrations. The price is 50 cents. Published by the Occidental Publishing Company, M. A. Thompson, proprietor, corner of Thirteenth avenue and Twelfth streets, East Oakland.
